Love for the College.

In a letter which has just been made public Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, makes the following answer to the invitation extended by the alumni to be present at a farewell dinner to-morrow night at the Astor:

"The programme of the second evening concert of the Philharmonic Society given lest night in Carnegie Hall was one of great substance. The principal relief was afforded by the two vocal numbers, the prayer from "Rienzi" and the forging song of young Siegfried, both sung by lacques Urius, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House. It seems unimportant to comment at this time on the singing of this member of Mr. Gatti-Casazza's forces. He will be heard often in the course of the comment at this time on the singing of this member of Mr. Gatti-Casazza's forces. He will be heard often in the course of the pera season, and he will sound better in the Metropolitan than in Carnegie Hall. Therefore let him pass peacefully on his way.

The concert began with nothing less man Richard Wagner's "Eine Faust" overture. This was followed by the first yould number, and then came Richard Strauss's tone poem "Ein Heldenleben."
